

[A Liquid Solution mixture designed to aid in the visual location of trace amounts of game animal blood.]

Abstract

In many instances blood trails are lost due to the inability of the hunter to locate the sometimes, "invisible" blood spots. This invention will give the hunter a tool that will without question increase the odds of locating this wounded game animal. This invention will allow for a greater recognition of not only trace amounts of spotting blood, but also by locating changes in the animals movements and direction. Locating this blood spot will allow the hunter to continue his or her quest to find the wounded game animal. This invention clearly can reduce the number of game animals that could not be located in the wild, simply because of misread or overlooked blood spots.